Our commitment to keeping the Singapore community safe
AIG is a founding member of the Together for Safer Roads coalition launched at the United Nations in November 2013 – the first global, private sector-led coalition on road safety. As an advocate of safer communities, AIG Singapore launched a road safety education programme in 2015 to keep children in Singapore safe. Pre-schoolers aged four to six learnt about road traffic rules, how to identify and interpret traffic signs and had the opportunity to drive mini-electric cars around a mock road track.

Since 2016, AIG has worked with the Singapore Traffic Police (TP) for our road safety education programme. The children have had the opportunity to learn kerb drills from the TP officers, as well as interact with them at each road safety session. We believe that through our programme and with the TP’s support, we can inculcate the importance of road safety from a young age, leading to safer roads in the future. To date, we have educated 4,792 pre-schoolers through our programme.
